

Mélanie Aubé-Peterkin

Dr. Aubé-Peterkin is an assistant professor in urology at the McGill University Health Centre, where she specializes in reconstructive urology and lower urinary tract dysfunction, notably BPH and prostatic enucleation. She is also the Assistant Program Director of the McGill urology residency program.

Dr. Aubé-Peterkin obtained her medical degree at Université Laval (2012) and completed her urologic residency at McGill University (2017). She completed her fellowship training in genitourinary reconstructive surgery at Eastern Virginia Medical School in 2018 under the direction of Dr. Kurt McCammon. She also obtained a master's in medical education from the University of Maastricht in the Netherlands.