

Monica A. Farcas, BEng, MEng, MD, FRCSC

Dr. Farcas is an assistant professor and surgeon-investigator in the Department of Surgery, Division of Urology, at the University of Toronto. She is an academic urologist at St. Michael's Hospital subspecializing in the areas of laparoscopic and robotic surgery, endourology, and renal transplantation. She has recently been appointed as the Agnico Eagle Chair in Minimally Invasive Urology and Endourology at St. Michael's Hospital. Dr. Farcas received her Master's degree in engineering at McGill University and obtained her MD and residency training in urology at the University of Toronto. Her research interests are in surgical innovation and surgical device development, as well as surgical simulation.